SELECT STORY.

THE "CLAIM-JUMPER"

HOW HE GOT EVEN WITH THE TWO "PARDNERS."

"What's that over thar, Bill?" asked Joe Scaggs, pointing toward an object that had made its appearance on the prairie, a mile to the south. Bill Barnum looked in the direction indicated.

"A house, or I'm a livin' liar!" exclaimed Bill, with emphasis. An' on Dick Barber's claim, too!" he continued, with a gesture of excitement.

"Do ye suppose he's goin' ter jump Dick's claim?" asked Joe.

"I dunno," answered Bill. "I guess he's not stoppin' ont thar fer his health. If he is, I'm thinkin' he'll soon go 'way on the same arrant, won't he, Joe?"

"You bet!" sanctioned Joe. "But ther way ter find out is ter go over an' see; an' while ye air cookin' supper, I'll ride over an' interview the stranger."

With this, he walked from the door of the half-board, half-dugout shanty, where the two had been standing, and approached a small barb-wire corral near by, where he mounted a powerful cayuse, and galloped away across the stretch of wind-swept prairie that separated him from the distant shanty on the prairie to the south.

A few moments' ride brought him to the front of a little dug out shanty that nestled in the side of a little hill at the edge of a small ravine. Just around the slight elevation in the prairie stood a covered wagon, or "prairie-schooner," as they are familiarly termed in the West.

A pair of sorrel mules, tied to the rear end of the wagon, were busily engaged in eating their evening meal of corn and dry grass out of the wagon-oox. A man came out of the shanty with a frying pan in his hand, and held it over a fire in front of the dwelling.

"Hello, thar!" exclaimed Joe, angrily. "What in the blazes air ye doin' hyar?"

The stranger turned and looked at the visitor a moment, and then said, quietly: "Fryin' meat."

"Joe's anger rose. "Oh, ye air, air ye?" Wal, as ye seem ter be so smart, mebby ye ken tell me whose claim ye air squattin' on!"

"I reckon I ken; h'it's mine."

"H'it is?"

"That's the way h'it looks ter me."

"Look hyar, stranger!" said Joe Scaggs, clinching his fist, "me an' my pardner over thar," jerking his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of his own shanty, "air holdin' this yere claim fer Dick Barber, who's comin' hyar in the spring from Injiany, an' we'll jist give ye tell ter merrer ter git out o' this!"

"Tain't long enough time," said the stranger, deliberately turning over a liberal slice of "muddling" that smoked in the frying-pan.

"How long do ye want?" questioned Joe, his wrath somewhat mollified by the stranger's evident intention of leaving.

"How long does a man have ter live on a claim before he ken get a deed for h'it?" was the reply of the stranger.

"Five years," replied Joe.

"Wal, then," continued the stranger, "make h'it five years, an' h'it's a barg'in."

"You impudent skunk!" roared Joe, now thoroughly aroused by the stranger's cool manner, "fer a cent I'd wallup the ground with yer onery carcass."

"Yas, ye might undertake h'it fer a cent, but ye'd never lay up any money at h'it," was the answer, as he set the frying-pan down and confronted Joe Scaggs.

Joe now moved his hand towards his pistol, but hesitated.

"Look hyar," said the stranger. "You order me ter leave this claim. Is h'it yourn?"

"No, not exactly mine; but we're holdin' h'it fer a friend, me an' my pardner air. We've got the two lyin' north o' this, an' we're holdin' this fer Dick Barber, an' we're goin' ter hold h'it.

"All right," he answered. "I guess h'it won't need much holdin'. H'it'll be hyar when yere friend comes so will I. If h'it is yer claim, I'll git off; but ye can't hold h'it fer somebody else. I know the law."

"Yes, ye may know the law, but ye don't know our law. We've made a special law fer sich fellers as ye, an' we're goin' ter go by that, an' don't ye fergit h'it."

"Wal, when ye force me ter go, I'll go—not before."

Angry words rose to Joe's lips, but he hesitated The cool, indifferent manner of the claim jumper puzzled him.

He was about to speak, when the tramp of a horse's feet sounded in the grass behind him, and Bill Barnum rode up, a Winchester rifle swung across his saddle.

"Thought mebbe ye'd have trouble," he explained, "an' that I'd come over an' see ye out."

"Bill," said Joe, gaining courage at the arrival of reinforcements, "he says he h'ain't a-goin' ter leave."

"Won't he?" Bill answered, bringing his Winchester down on the stranger. "Now, ye load up yer traps an' git."

"All right," he answered, doggedly. "You've got ther advantage o' me, I'll go, but I'll git even with ye sometime, see if I don't;" and he began tumbling his effects together.

Bill and Joe watched him while he piled his traps into the wagon.

"Stranger," said Bill, "we don't want ter be hard on yer, an' we don't mind payin' ye fer yer little shanty, seein' as ye can't take h'it along."

"No, h'it ain't worth nothin'," was the answer. "I don't mind givin' a good neighbor a little thing like that."

"Wal, Bill," said Joe, "h'it's gittin' late, an' we'd better be gittin' ter the shanty and lookin' after our supper.'

"Supper!" exclaimed Bill. "Thar h'ain't nothin' fer supper, ror breakfast either, unless that onery cuss gits back from Attiey ter-night."

"Don't say that," answered Joe. "H'it makes me hungrier 'an a bar ter hear ye speak like that. H'aint we got nothin' ter eat?'

"No, nothin' but a few pieces of hard bread an' a bite or two o' meat. That onery cuss, John Biggs, that we sent after grub to Attiey, 'll git drunker 'an a b'iled owl, and not come back till we go after him, like as not.'

With this they turned their horses around and rode away in the direction of home, leaving the stranger standing in silence looking after them.

Ike Dover—for such was the stranger's name—turned and entered his shanty.

"Wal, h'it means pull out, I reckon," he muttered; "but I'll jist stay hyar till mornin' anyway."

The sun had gone down behind a bank of tawny, purple clouds, an ashy pallor overspread the sky.

"Goin' ter have bad weather," observed Joe Scaggs, as they rode through the fast gathering darkness.

Late that night Bill punched Joe in the ribs with his elbow, and said:

"Joe, h'it's gittin' colder 'an all git out. We've got ter git up an' find some more covers. Gee whiz! listen ter that wind!"

Bill got up and struck a light and put on his clothes.

The weather had suddenly grown intensely cold, and the wind was roaring across the prairie, and sweeping through the dead grass with a sharp hissing sound.

Bill opened the door and looked out. A great gust of wind swept into the room, whirling a cloud of snowflakes with it and extinguished the light.

"A blizzard!" exclaimed Bill, slamming the door and relighting the lamp.

Joe had also got up and was putting on his clothes.

"We must see ter the hosses," he said, drawing on his heavy boots. "They'll freeze ter death in that shed if they h'ain't blanketed."

He opened the door and went out, and in a few moments returned.

"The hosses air gone!" he exclaimed, "broke loose and been driven away by the blizzard."

"One uv us must go after 'em," exclaimed Bill. "H'it won't do to lose 'em. They'll die in this storm if they don't find shelter."

"Yes, an' you'd die a dozen times 'fore ye'd find 'em in this storm."

"Poor animals!" exclaimed Bill, "but h'it can't be helped."

Bill kindled a fire in the little sheet-iron stove in the corner.

The air was growing colder and colder every moment, and the circle of heat around the stove grew smaller and smaller with each surge of the wind as it shook the roof and sent the sleet and snow hissing through the crevices.

The two men drew their chairs near the stove after replenishing the flame from a pile of coal in the corner of the room.

Morning came at last, gray and desolate, with blinding clouds of snow and sleet sweeping across the prairie. The storm showed no signs of abating, but was increasing in its fury.

"Joe," said Bill, breaking the silence, "nobody can't come from Attiey ter-day; and the pervisions! thar's nothin' in the house ter eat."

Joe got up and looked out at the small window.

"H'it's as yer say, Bill; thar can't nobody come from Attiey ter-day——" And then, huskily: "H'it may be a week 'for' they can."

The two men looked at each other, and each read the other's thoughts.

"Thar can't nobody git nowhar now, and mebby not for a week. Bill, we air in a bad fix."

Bill made no reply, but filled a large black pipe, lit it, sat down by the fire and began puffing away in silence.

Joe brought more fuel from the corner and filled up the stove.

The day passed and night came down, and still the storm raged and the snow fell in blinding clouds.

It was at the close of the fifth day, and neither Bill nor Joe had tasted food for four days, and as they looked out across the desolate, snow-covered plain, their hearts sunk within them.

"Bill," said Joe, huskily, "we can't hold out much longer. H'it'll be more 'an a week 'fore any one could git hyar or we could git away."

"Yas, an' that will be too late," answered Bill, an ashy pallor overspreading his thin face.

The next morning Joe arose, kindled the fire in the little stove, and sat down in silence.

Bill did not get up, but remained in bed, a pinched look settling over his features. It was getting late in the afternoon when he called Joe to the bedside.

"Joe," he said, feebly, "I h'ain't got much longer ter stay with ye. This yere cold is freezin' my thin blood, an' I'm gittin' weaker an' weaker.

"Come, come, Bill!" said Joe, a great lump rising in his throat. "Cheer up; mebby som'thin' 'ill turn up; mebby——"

"Tain't no use, Joe. We've all got ter go sometime. 'Tain't no use in hopin' when thar h'ain't nothin' ter expect."

Joe made no reply. Stooping down presently he drew a little box from under the bed and took out a small piece of dry, hard bread and laid it by the side of Bill.

"I saved h'it for ye, Bill," he said turning away.

"No—no!" said Bill; "h'it's better fer one uv us ter go 'an both uv us. Mebbe, as ye say, somethin 'll turn up, an—"

A muffled sound like footsteps in the snow came from the outside, and something like the sound of a human voice mingled with the hissing wind.

Jo listened, but the sound was not repeated. He opened the door and looked out.

A few feet from the threshold, half buried in the drifting snow, was the prostrate figure of a man, a large bundle of something at his side. A moment, and Joe was stooping over the prostrate figure. He shook him but he did not speak. Then, by a series of heroic efforts, he dragged the unconscious man into the dug-out. As he did so a bundle that was strapped about the shoulders of the unfortunate became detached and rolled over on the floor, displaying a small bag of flour and a chunk of bacon.

"H'it's John Biggs come back!" exclaimed Joe; "an' he's brought enough pervisions ter carry us through, thank God! but, pore feller he's almost done fer!"

He hurriedly stirred up the fire in the little stove, and then turning to the unconscious man, he brushed the snow from his wan face.

"Bill," he said starting with surprise, "h'it ain't John Biggs—h'it's the claim-jumper. He's saved our lives, Bill, an' after we was goin' ter run him away."

"My God!" exclaimed Bill, struggling feebly out of the bed, new strength coming to his feeble frame. "We must save him, Joe, if he h'ain't already dead. We mustn't let him die.

The two men shivering with cold and weak from hunger, worked as they never worked before. By their combined efforts, they lifted the poor frozen squatter from the floor and laid him tenderly on their only bed.

He opened his eyes and muttered something in an incoherent manner. The two men bent over him and listened.

"H'it ain't much farther,' he muttered. "I heard 'em say they didn't have nothin' to eat over thar—an' Ike Dover, h'it's yer dooty ter help 'em—No—no—they wur goin' ter run me off—h'it can't be much farther—O, if I could only sleep a little—h'it ain't cold now."

Joe took hold of his hands and held them in his own. They were frozen as hard as icicles! He looked at bill, and uttered a groan.

"He can't live, Bill," he said, chokingly. Bill bent over the bed, his face close to that of the dying man.

"Pardner," he said, his voice husky with emotion, "you've throwed away yer life fer us that didn't deserve nothing but yer hate. You've frozen them pore hands for us onery wolves that would 'a' driv' ye away from yer claim. O, if ye could only live ter tell me how mean an' onery I've been ter yer—" Here Bill broke down and wept like a child.

Presently the dying man muttered: "H'it's all right—I see h'it now—thar is the cabin, right ahead—" and with these words his spirit fled.

For a long time the only sound that broke the stillness of that desolate prairie home was the sobbing of the two men and the hissing of the winter wind.—Will Lisenbee in Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

Inaugural Travel on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

When in 1885 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company successfully carried into and returned from Washington the vast host of inaugural pilgrims, it was considered that the perfection of railroad management, in promptly and effectively moving enormous numbers of people within a given space of time, had been reached. But notwithstanding this extraordinary record the achievement of this company on the inaugural occasion just passed surpasses all previous accomplishments in this direction. The company was prepared to do much more than it did, and had not the unusual inclemency of the weather intervened the total result would have been far greater.

One hundred and five thousand excursionists, including the public, the organizations, and the military, were delivered in Washington before noon of March 4th, and all, except the clubs and the military, were landed at the Baltimore and Potomac Station. For the conveyance of this number it required two hundred and ten trains of ten cars each, with an average of fifty persons to each car. All the trains were run in sections, and in many cases the number of sections to a given train reached ten. This involved a continuous stream of crowded cars entering the station at intervals of a few minutes, discharging their passengers, and being shifted out to make room for the incoming current. All these trains were moved promptly, and no accident of any character occured to mar the success of the work. No unavoidable delay was experienced, but under the strict rules governing the operators of the block system, there were, perhaps, here and there delays, which safety necessitated, on a line of track filled to repletion with long trains of crowded cars.

The true test of ability in management came when the thousands, impatient and eager to return, crowded into the station and filled the trains as fast as they were made up. This difficult portion of the work was accomplished with reasonable promptitude, considering the vast number of people and the multiplicity of trains to be moved at one time. On Monday night and Tuesday hundreds of trains started from the capitol, all freighted to their utmost capacity, and, under the admirable system which distinguishes the entire organization of this road, were forwarded to their destination steadily and in complete safety. Such a result could never be achieved except under the method of operation employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, coupled with the ability, sagacity, and faithfulness of the employes. It was a truly wonderful exhibition of skillful management, and finds its only parallel in a similar achievement, when the same company handled with conspicuous success one hundred and seventy five thousand people on the occasion of the Constitutional Centennial Celebration at Philadelphia, in September, 1887.

The revenue from this service will amount to half a million of dollars.

Help to Mothers Nursing.

Mothers who have the care and draught of nursing infants need the aid of strengthening tonic to make up the nourishment required for the growth of the child Ale, porter, and lager beer have often been recommended. Of late, since physicians have become aware that the Port Wine produced by Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., is strictly pure, they have prescribed it instead of ale or porter, as being more blood making. This Wine is principally sought for by mothers who have nursing infants at the breast as the best supplying medium to be found. The wine is rich in body and not intoxicant but gently stimulating and makes good blood. Druggists generally keep it, and sell it for a dollar a bottle.—Inquirer

"There, my daughter," said the old man as he took a torn-looking check from his pocketbook, "there is my wedding present, a check for $20,000. God bless you." "O, thank you, papa; you are kind and generous," examining the check; "but isn't this the same check you gave sister Ella when she was married?"—Epoch.

Messrs Editors:

It is undoubtedly true, that the democratic party is under no obligation to the liquor interest. Its affiliations have always been with the Republicans, and it has contributed to them in votes and money more than any other organization in Pennsylvania, unless it be the especially protected interests—and if now, the liquor interest has its neck wound by its late political colleagues, we can stand by and say "served you right."

At the same time, as a matter of principle the Democratic party ought not to support the Prohibition Amendment. The enactment of sumptury laws, the regulation of drink, diet or clothing, the interference with personal rights and liberties are in contravention of the doctrines, theories and practices of the Democratic party.

Let me add to the above the following from the Philadelphia Record.

An Interesting Inquiry.

If the proposed prohibitory amendment should be adopted in this state, would it prohibit the making of home-made wine—grape wine, dandelion wine, blackberry wine, etc.—such as is made by many families in the country districts for home purposes, and used generally for the relief of certain complaints and disorders that do not require a physician's attention, which is both expensive and inconvenient in remote country places?

Phœnixville, Pa., Feb. 21. J. W. H.

The proposed amendment to the Constitution, if adopted, would clearly prohibit the making of domestic wines, beer or cider to be used as a beverage. The Legislature is empowered to authorize housewives to make wine for medicine, or the farmer to make cider for vinegar, but not to be used as St. Paul advised timothy to use a little wine, for his stomach's sake, on his own prescription. The language of the amendment is as follows:

The manufactnre, sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquor to be used as a beverage is hereby prohibited, and any violation of this shall be a misdemeanor punishable as shall be provided by law.

The manufacture, sale or keeing for sale of intoxicating liquors for other purposes than as a beverage may be allowed in such manner only as may be prescribed by law. The General Assembly shall, at the first session succeding the adoption of this article of the Constitution, enact laws with adequate penalties for its enforcement.

There is no mistaking the iron-clad character of this language. The farmers who vote for Prohibition may as well pull down their cider-mills and have their good wives convert all their grapes and berries into jam.

The Profound Slumber of Mrs. Althouse, Whose Case is a Mystifying One.

At Attica, N. Y., they have been in a state of wonder over the case of Mrs. Emma Althouse, who has now been "dreaming the happy hours away," for days. In August, 1887, after obtaining relief from a severe illness, she fell into a series of slumbers of an average duration of from three to ten days.

In the intervals when she is awake she converses upon her condition, and predicts the length of every trance. When she goes to sleep she tells either a physician or an attendant just how long her slumber will last, and she carries out her prediction to the letter, never permitting herself to be aroused till the term is finished.

Mrs. Althouse is married and has one child. She is 25 years old. Her parents came to America from Germany 34 years ago. In March, 1888, she sank into a trance, which lasted 35 days. Just previous to this trance she partook of more nourishment than usual, a glassfull of milk by means of a teaspoon. After she goes to sleep her teeth are tightly set together, and all efforts to pry them apart for the purpose of giving her food have been failures.

These trances are not all the mystery connected with Mrs. Althouse. In June last there was an attempt to poison the sick woman. The doctor, having been called, found her suffering from cramps. She appeared to be almost lifeless, and was vomiting a greenish substance. She was relieved by emetics. It appeared that almost an hour before two men called at the house asking to see the patient, affirming that the doctor had sent them.

Hearing them speak, Mrs. Althouse recognized their voices, and said she did not wish to see them. The men, however, brushed by a sister who was in attendance and entered the room where the sick woman lay. One of them talked to the patient while the other sat by a table upon which were phials of medicine and a cup of coffee. After the men left Mrs. Althouse asked for a drink. Her sister gave her the coffee that had been standing on the table. She had no sooner drank it than she complained of a burning sensation in her throat; she became very pale and was seized with cramps.

The physician examined the dregs left in the bottom of the coffee cup and also the contents of a phial standing on the table. In a few days they both turned green. The body of the patient was soon afterwards covered with black spots. The case was taken before the district attorney, but nothing was done about it.

Last December Mrs. Althouse went to sleep again for nine days, awakening January 3, when she said she would go into a trance lasting longer than any she had yet been through, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon she was again slumbering.

The doctors tried to awaken her by throwing cold water on her face and by means of a galvanic battery, but did not succeed. She awoke on February 5, after having slept 34 days. She immediately went to sleep again.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, MARCH 15, 1889.

The new administration was placed in a peculiar situation at the time of inauguration. The Shah of Persia sent his congratulations to President Harrison. No one of the Cabinet officers could interpret the message or acknowledge it; and Cleveland's Secretary of State, Mr. Bayard, who understands the Persian language, was called upon to help them out. When Mr. Blaine learns the Persian language he can ascertain what reply his predecessor sent.

At the last regular meeting of the Democratic State Committee the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED—That the City and County Committees, Committeemen and all the regular agencies of the party be enjoined and earnestly advised to procure the immediate organization of Democratic Societies, covering all the districts in their respective Cities and Counties, and that such societies become members of the Democratic Society of Pennsylvania, transmitting lists of their officers and members to the Secretary, Maj. John D. Worman, Democratic Headquarters, Harrisburg, Pa.

It is highly important that the organization of the Democratic Societies should proceed and that the people should be instructed as to their spirit and purpose, and this committee is especially anxious that no effort to that end should be spared.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, Mar. 11, 1889

Harrison will be a dead man in less than three months if the horde of greedy office seekers do not cease persecuting him. Already his right arm is lamed and his complexion has the suspicious chalkey white appearance of ill health. But the crowd still comes marching on, fairly falling over each other in their eagerness to reach the ear of the President. Such a gang was never before seen in Washington. It was thought at the beginning of Mr. Cleveland's administration that the pressure for office was great, but compared with that now going on, it was as a summer zephyr to an untamed Dakota blizzard. Every man except those that have died, that ever held office under republican administration is here clamoring for vindication in the shape of an appointment to his old place or to a better one, and in addition there are thousands of men who are after getting their first taste of official life. These last think the government service needs a liberal infusion of new blood, provided, of course that they furnish it. Between them they are making a torment for Mr. Harrison as great as any that ever existed on this earth, and there is little chance of a change until everything worth scrambling for is given out. In the mean time Mr. Harrison's worst enemy could not wish him worse punishment than he is daily undergoing.

Senator Hampton thinks that ex-Governor Thompson will be nominated as the Democratic member of the Civil Service Commissioner. He was nominated by Mr. Cleveland, and would have been confirmed had his name been sent in before the Republicans passed a caucus resolution against any more political confirmations.

Ex-Senator Whitney has sold his Washington residence to Postmaster General Wanamaker for $80,000. Mr. Whitney will take a two months trip to Europe before settling down to work in New York. The rest of Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet except Mr. Endicott, are still here. Mr. Dickinson went to New York with Mr. Cleveland's party last week, but has returned.

There's a big row in the Republican camp already. It is a question of versoity between Harrison and Ex-Governor Alger. Alger told the Michigan delegation that Harrison had expressed great regret on account of having to leave him (Alger) out of the cabinet, and that as a slight compensation the President has told him that he might name a man for Solicitor General. He named H. M. Duffield, who he asked the delegation to endorse, at the same time assuring them that it was only a formality; that the appointment would be considered personal, and would not be charged to the state. The delegation endorsed the application and carried it immediately to Mr. Harrison. The delegation was struck dumb when the president told them he knew nothing about the matter, and that they had better file the application with the Attorney General. What transpired when the delegation got back to Alger is not yet known.

Representative Townsend, of Illinois, died suddenly on Saturday. He caught a severe cold last week, and on Tuesday it was developed into pneumonia. He was one of the most popular men in the House.

Mr. Harrison's Cabinet, with the exception of Mr. Blaine and Mr. Windom, is regarded as very weak. It is Blaine all over. All the members are intense Blaineites except two— Miller and Wanamaker, and these two can harly be said to count, Mr. Miller being appointed solely because he was Harrison's law partner and personal friend, and Mr. Wanamaker because he held Mr. Quay's order for the Postmaster Generalship, for which he had paid $100,000 in cold cash.

A gentlemen says he asked Mr. Harrison if he intended to call an extra session of the Fiftieth Congress, and that the President replied: "No indeed, I want to get these fellows away, not to give them an excuse for remaining."

Queer lot, these republicans. The man who helped Mr. Quay in all his underground work— J. S. Clarkson— is not good enough to receive an appointment in the cabinet, and he was turned down, notwithstanding the able backing he received from such men as Senators Allison and Quay.

The extra session of the Senate has as yet done nothing except confirm the Cabinet officers, but a number of nominations are expected this week. It has been about settled that no other business will be touched. This is somewhat disappointing to the bloody-shirters, who wanted to pass the Hoar Southern election investigating resolution.

It will be a long time before any administration attains the social success of the last one. Mrs. Cleveland as the popular idol is not likely to have a successor for many years to come, if ever.

A Big Meeting of Temperance People Held at Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, March 12.—The Dauphin County Prohibition Convention met here to-day and organized by making J. J. Nissley, of Hummelstown, chairman, and J. Wesley Awl, of Harrisburg and J. B. Landis, of Halifax, secretaries. Over two hundred delegates were present. A committee on resolutions composed of prominent ministers and others with Hon. Francis Jordan as chairman, reported as follows: "We delegates from Dauphin County, representing the friends of the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage in convention assembled Resolve "That we hereby indorse and approve the action of the State Prohibitory Convention, and hereby pledge our hearty and zealous co-operation to procure the adoption of said amendment at the ballot box on the 18th of June next; that the pending issue transcends in magnitude and importance every other question now before our people, involving as it does their highest interests here and hereafter, and we earnestly invite the aid of all our citizens, without regard to party or denominational preference, to unite with us in one grand rally for the overthrow of the liquor traffic and for the salvation of the state from all the wrongs and manifold evils it is inflicting upon the Commonwealth; that our hearty thanks are due to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and other temperance organizations for their zealous and continued labors in educating our people to this great issue, and we cordially invite their aid in this conflict, that we cheerfully recognize and appreciate the power of the public press and, thankful for their generally fair and liberal treatment of the great issue, we most earnestly invoke their aid and co-operation in the pending canvass."

The resolutions were adopted amidst applause. It was agreed that the fight should be conducted on political principles and a county committee formed.

Over $600 was raised for campaign expenses. It was the largest temperance meeting ever held in this county. During the afternoon addresses were made by A. H. Rankin, of Pittsburg, and Mrs. Annie Wittenmyer.

It seems that the Legislature at Harrisburg is a body of mere bunglers, who do not know how to draw a Prohibition Amendment. It is already necessary to excuse, apologize for, and explain it. We are assured that "The amendment if adopted, will not unnecessarily interfere with the individual liberty of the citizen in respect of making, buying, importing, keeping and using as a beverage alcoholic or any other sort of liquor. It strikes directly only at the sale: in other words at the liquor stores and dram-shops. The object is to do away with the dram shop as an unbecomming business;"

So it seems the rich men can buy their cases of wines and brandies, their barrels and half-barrels of whiskies and drink and guzzle to their heart's content; but a poor man who wants a glass of beer or of whiskey, and who cannot supply himself by the quantity, is to be prevented from having a single glass. The rights of the author of the article quoted will not be interfered with in the least, but he is determined to interfere with the rights of every poor man in the community, or any other man who wants only one glass of beer at a time.

An Eager, Hungry Horde.

There are tenfold as many office-seekers in Washington as were there at this time four years ago. The Democracy after twenty-three years of exclusion from Federal power was not one tithe as eager for patronage as the Republicans now are to recover the minority of positions they have been deprived of during the term of President Cleveland. —New York Star.

At a Methodost conference at Salem N. J. March 11 among other things "the use of tobacco by members of the conference was condemned, and the Presiding elders were ordered to ascertain who had broken their vows in this connection."

Thus fanaticism and folly go hand in hand, and the liberty to eat or drink or smoke or dress will presently be controlled by the cranks whose weak stomachs and weaker heads succumb to a glass of beer or a mild cigar. They will next regulate the cut of his beard as well as his coat, and regulate the length of his nose by that of his shoe. No man has the right to interfere with my rights—we and our rights stand upon an equal footing.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

Reported by G. S. Palmer, Wholesale Commission Merchant, 166 Reade St., N. Y.

New York, March 11, 1889.

The week opens with bright, clear weather, with every indication of a good volumn of business being done from this time. The market presents about the same general features and prices ruling steady in most lines of produce. The Lenten season having opened, eggs are therefore in much better demand and fresh stock from near by points selling to-day at 15c. Salt Rheum

The agonies of those who suffer from severe salt rheum are indescribable. The cleansing, healing, purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla are unequalled by any other medicine.

"I take pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it has done wonders for me. I had salt rheum very severely, affecting me over nearly my entire body. Only those who have suffered from this disease in its worst form can imagine the extent of my affliction. I tried many medicines, but failed to receive benefit until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then the disease began to subside, the disappeared, and now I am entirely free from the disease. My blood seems to be thoroughly purified, and my general health is greatly benefited." LYMAN ALLEN, Sexton N. E. Church, North Chicago, Ill.

"My son had salt rheum on his hands and the calves of his legs, so bad that they would crack open and bleed. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. STANTON, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

From 108 to 135

"I was seriously troubled with salt rheum for three years, and receiving no benefit from medical treatment I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now entirely cured of salt rheum; my weight has increased from 108 lbs. to 135." MRS. ALICE SMITH, Stamford, Conn.

If you suffer from salt rheum, or any blood disease, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured many others, and will cure you.

GEORGE A. CLARK, P. M.

The Troy Standard says of "Hearts of Oak": The scene of the play is laid off the New England coast and the first tableau wherein the wreck and the signal bombs bursting in air are vividly depicted, is grand. In the grist-mill scene, introducing a mill wheel in motion, with its whirring sound, nature and art are artistically combined. It would be profitable if ministers given to sweeping denunciation would witness this play.

Correspondents and all persons who have occasion to write for newspapers, should avoid abbreviations. Do not write Tues. for Tuesday, ch. for church, pres. for president, etc. The habit of omitting the words, the, and, is, and other connecting words, is also annoying to the editor. When a communication is received that abounds with abbreviations and omissions, the editor must thoroughly revise the same, spell out the abbreviations and add the omissions. The compositors in all well regulated newspapers offices are instructed to "follow copy," and they do it. We only wish that newspaper writers were as particular to follow instructions, as the compositor is to "follow copy."—Ex.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Bloomsburg, at their regular meeting, Tuesday March 5, 1889, adopted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, two of our sisters, Mrs. Ata Miller and Miss Eva Rupert, active members of the Bloomsburg W. C. T. U., mourn the recent death of their beloved father, the Hon. Leonard B. Rupert;

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with them in their great bereavement; and pray that they may be consoled by the Supreme Comforter, our Father in Heaven, who has said, "Let the fatherless children trust in me."

The popularity of "Hearts of Oak" has stood the test of eight seasons, and, as the same intrinsic merits and scenic effects which made it famous are still associated with the performance, it will doubtless continue to prove a great attraction. While the story of the drama is sentimental and unnatural, the interest of the spectators never varies. The broad humor which lightens up the somber scenes centers around the baby and her grandpap. The first-named role was appropriately filled by a brown-haired little maiden a year or so old. When the baby pulled off grandpa's specs, yanked his hair and sucked a stick of candy the audience became enthusiastic and laughed hysterically. The scenic effects were excellent.—Baltimore Herald.

A. B. Hartman of Buck Horn went to Sunbury on Wednesday afternoon to attend the funeral of his brother, James Hartman on Thursday morning, who died on Tuesday. James Hartman was one of fifteen children, eight of whom are living. He formerly lived in this county, but for forty years past he has resided at Millersburg and Sunbury. He leaves a wife and five children, and his age was 70 years.

At a meeting of Ent Post No. 250, G. A. R. held Friday evening, 8th inst., the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased an all wise Providence to permit the removal by death of our comrade Col. Samuel Knorr, who was a charter member of this Post, therefore be it

Resolved, That we deem it fitting and highly appropriate to express our esteem for his noble character and patriotic devotion to his country, in whose cause he gave the best service of his early manhood.

Resolved, That we express our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved widow and children, commend them to the tender mercy of our kind Heavenly Father.

Resolved, That our charter be draped and the customary badges of mourning be displayed in Post room.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased, and the same to be inserted in our county papers.

Col. James Corcoran, of Williamsport, Wilson Kistler, of Lock Haven, and W. H. Lind, of Clearfield county are about to erect a large tannery at the mouth of Blackberry Run at Jameson City. This company proposes to erect three buildings; one 700 feet in length, with a wing extending 400 feet, another 60 by 120 feet, for the purpose of storing hides and leather; also a leech house 40 by 60 feet. There will be in the buildings 8 boilers and 3 engines. When completed and stocked with leather and hides the building will cost $300,000 and the tannery will have a capacity of 15,000 cords of bark per year. For the entire work they will occupy 30 acres of ground.

The hauling and peeling bark, in connection with the tannery, will take about 500 laborers. As it is not the intention of the company to erect any dwelling houses, and the accomodation of these laborers and their families will require a large number of tenant houses, the building of these houses will be a good speculation for capitalists.

A party of sixteen gentlemen sat down to an excellent supper at the Exchange Hotel last Friday night. The menu embraced terrapin, lettuce, oysters, potatoes, salads, fresh shad, crackers, cheese, fruit, ice cream, cake, coffee, and cigars. There were present the Mayor of the city, the President of a bank, the President of a warming corporation, the secretary of a railroad company, the greatest inventor of the age, two editors, two railroad contractors, a sub printer, a magistrate, a prosecuting officer, treasurer of a railroad company, a bank cashier, an insurer of lives, and last but not least the proprietor of the house, who is president of several corporations and a director of a railroad company. Nobody seemed to know whose party it was, nor what the occasion for it was, but it was a delicious supper and everybody enjoyed it. Mr. Tubbs was specially complimented on the snapper soup. Every man had a written speech in his pocket which he was anxious to read, but failed to do so on account of the uproar occasioned by all trying to talk at one time. In this respect it was a veritable "Clover Club." One man more courageous than the rest, on failing to read his speech presented it to the host. It was in "blank" verses, on a roll of paper six yards long. Another member borrowed the roll and read therefrom with great effect a few verse of Italian poetry. There was music by the orchestra, singing by the glee club, and at 11.30 the party adjourned after electing Mr. Tubbs President, and agreeing to meet again upon his call.

Reunion of the 209th Regiment.

Extensive preparations are being made at Carlisle for the reunion of the 209th Regiment, P. V. on Monday, March 25. It is expected that over 400 of the survivors of the brave boys who faced death on many a bloody field will be there. Gen. Hartranft who commanded the division, will be present. A grand parade will take place, participated in by the G. A. R. Posts, National Guards and the 209th. Camp fires will be held, and a big time is looked forward to by the veterans.

Col. T. B. Kauffman, who commanded the 209th, now of Bellmonde, Iowa, will be present.

Arrangements have been made for all members of Co. E. who desire to attend the reunion to meet at Bloomsburg on the morning of the 25th, and take the 8:32 train on the D. L. & W. R. R. Special excursion rates have been secured, also reduced rates at hotels at Carlisle.

Laubach's.

Bills of public sales can be seen in every store and hotel.

Amos Gibertson buried his little three year old girl on the 8th inst. The bereaved have the sympathy of the community with them.

Johnnie Fritz of Coles Creek drove to town yesterday. He has a spirited young colt and is trying to break it. Beware Johnnie or the colt may break you, instead.

Hervey Long has concluded to go to school this winter.

A. Laubach, merchant, has a peculiar clock in his store. It is a clock with an oval face, supported by a stand, which raises it to the height of one foot. The pendulum is composed of a little boy on a swing, which has a spiral spring attached, and by the motion of the boy jumping up and down, it will run twenty-four hours at one winding.

INVALID READERS will find that one dollar expended for Dr. Parker's great medical work, the "Science of Life," will be of more value to them than ten thousand dollars expended for proprietary medicines, electric appliances, &c. The book contains over one hundred and twenty-five invaluable prescriptions for all diseases that human flesh is heir to. See advertisement.

Mifflinville Institute.

The Institute held here on March 2nd commenced at 9:30 o'clock with devotional exercises conducted by Prof. Noetling, and singing by Institute. A class exercise in physiology was then given by Mr. W. M. Kitchen, followed by an essay by Miss Gertrude Kirkendall, after which was a recitation by Mr. W. S. Williams and select reading by Mr. Irvin Smoyer. A class exercise in primary reading was then given by Miss Florence Montgomery, followed by an essay by Miss Alice Aten, Greeting Song by Primary school, and recitation by Mr. W. M. Kitchen, after which Prof. Noetling addressed the Institute. Institute then adjourned to meet at 1:30 oclock.

In the afternoon Institute opened at time appointed with singing, followed by a recitation by Miss Vida Brown and essay by Mr. W. M. Kitchen, after which Prof. Cope gave a very interesting talk on Statement Method, showing its advantages over the old mathematical methods. An essay was then given by Mr. W. S. Williams.

An intermission of 5 minutes was followed by a few remarks on the study of history by Supt. Grimes and recitation by Miss Maggie Andreas, after which Prof Noetling spoke on the duty of parents visiting schools, and directors visiting and furnishing schools. Mr. D. C. McHenry then made a few remarks followed by a motion song given by Primary School, a class exercise in History by Mr. W. P. Johnson, an essay by Mr. O. H. Yetter, and song by Primary School, after which Institute closed. SEC.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle Free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c and $100. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Knights of the Golden Eagle.

The thirteenth annual session of the Grand Castle, K. G. E., of Pennsylvania, will be held in Harrisburg, commencing April 2d, at Shakespeare Hall, 214 Locust street. The session will probably last three days. Several important amendments will be acted upon, including the change of time of session to the first Tuesday in May, and the question of regulating the benefits to be paid members in accordance with the amount of dues paid. It is expected that upwards of 500 Past Chiefs, including a Representative from each of the 399 Castles, will be in attendance.

The Representatives from this section of the State are:

John W. Farnsworth, Danville, C. B. Spurr, Centralia, J. W. Kurtz, Berwick, Jacob Shaffer, Bloomsburg.

Several Castles are perfecting programmes of entertainment for the visiting Sir Knights. A selected team from the Harrisburg Castles will confer the Degrees with elaborate paraphernalia on Wednesday evening, April 3, and there is no doubt but that the Representatives and visitors will be well repaid by witnessing the work.

On Tuesday afternoon, April 2d, there will be a grand parade in honor of the session. It is expected that at the least 5000 uniformed Sir Knights of the Castles and Military Branch from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, District of Columbia, and Maryland will participate. The parade will be reviewed by the Governor and members of the State Legislature from the Capitol buildings.

The seven Castles of Dauphin County are doing their utmost to make it the largest and finest display in the history of the Knights of the Golden Eagle. Grand Chief Louis E. Stilz and his associate Grand Castle officers are materially assisting in this commendable object.

The committee has elected Sir Knight Harry Stites, M. D., of Harmony Castle, No. 53, as Chief Marshal. He has appointed as Chief of Staff, Hon. John A. Fritchey, Mayor of Harrisburg; and the following Sir Knights as Aids: Hon. Thos. V. Cooper, Media; Hon. W. F. Stewart, Philadelphia; Hon. James R Kenney, Mayor of Reading; Hon. Wm. B. Smith, ex-mayor of Philadelphia; and Captain J. T. Rife, of Middletown.

Carriages will be provided for the officers of the Supreme Castle and all Grand Castles.

The committee contemplates offering handsome prizes to Castles and Commanderies for the best drilled and largest number of Sir Knights in line.

A Druggist Says.

Marvin C. Brown, Druggist, Meredith Village, N. H., says: I have sold your Sulphur Bitters for years, and, contrary to most medicines, I never sold a bottle to any one who said it did not help them. They cured me of those terrible sick headaches when every other remedy failed. Mar-15-2t.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of Council. L. S. Wintersteen appeared in behalf of the owners of the Hoyt farm, and objects to the opening of the proposed street from Fifth street to the Espy road. On motion it was ordered that the town surveyor make survey of the said street.

Mr. Cadow, one of the committe on Fire Department, reports that he made inquiry into the condition of the leather hose, now in use by the fire companies; found that the Rescue H. & L. Co. had four hundred feet of leather hose which was practically worthless, and the Friendship Fire Company has same quantity only a little better than H. & L. Co.

N. U. Funk Esq., appears and complains of water being lately dammed up over the Espy road near the residence of Jonathan Troup, and that he had found it so frequently before, after heavy rains; he suggests that the culverts be examined at that place, which carry the water to the south side of the Penna. Canal.

On motion it was ordered that Mrs S. A. Petrikin be notified to repair her pavement on Third street, in front of the skating rink or put down a new one, as may be necessary, within thirty days from notice and in default the commissioner of highways shall repair or put in new as the case may be, and the cost thereof with 20 per cent. added shall be collected from the owner of the property. On motion several accounts were ordered to be cancelled, being barred by the statute of limitations and uncollectable. Total $49.09.

The following resolution was offered and its adoption moved: Whereas, application has been made requesting permission to the Bloomsburg Belt Railroad Co. to lay and use its railroad upon Seventh street; And whereas, it is proper before action is taken in reference to such request, that the grade of Seventh street should be fixed from Market street to East street; Therefore, Resolved, that notice be given parties interested as property owners on Seventh street from Market street to East street, that they will be heard in relation to the request for privilege to lay and use the railroad track of the Bloomsburg Belt Railroad Company upon Seventh street from the west side of Market street to the east side of East street, at the corner of the property of Harman & Hassert at the intersection of East street and Berwick road, and also in reference to the fixing of a grade upon Seventh street from Market street to East street, at a meeting of the Town Council to be held at the usual place of meeting, to-wit; the council room in the COLUMBIAN Building, on Thursday the 14th day of March 1889, at eight o'clock in the evening, at which time and place all parties interested may appear and be heard if they desire." Agreed to unanimously.

M. C. Woodward, collector for 1886 asks for additional exonerations, after examining the list. On motion a number were allowed.

On motion bills and accounts amounting to $534 01 were read and approved and secretary directed to issue orders on treasurer for same.

On motion council adjourned to meet Thursday evening, March 14th.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, March 11, 1889.

Here's a Cashmere that we never had the like of before under $1. The price is 75c. Lift a fold; every ounce of the weight comes from good, fine wool honestly put together. Try the yard stick; 46 inches, plump. Test the dye; every shade shows as evenly as sunshine on a quiet pool. Sixty-seven of the newest tints.

A fit fellow for the famous 65c Cashmere at 50c.

Gloriosa; shimmering, irridescent, delicate Gloriosa shares the counter with Printed Challis and Mohairs—like a bit of the city amid pastures and hayfields. 48 inches wide, $1.50. Such a jump into your liking as Gloriosa took! Favorite shades went in a twinkling. We've mended the assortment.

Sixty-four styles and colorings of 75c Side Band stuffs. The Spring shades, of course. Maybe a dozen varieties of border. A word must do. 42 inches wide.

Let two of the newest plain stuffs stand for perhaps a thousand:

1—Fifty-inch, fine, All-wool French Surah Cloth at $1. Weave like surah silk. Wonderfully fine and firm. 12 shades. A stuff that you've only begun to hear of.

2—A grand, 48 inch Foule at 75c. 14 colorings.

The Irishman now, with his Linen Lawns, is in the wild chase of color in dress goods stuffs. The Italian with his delicately shaded silk Roman Sashes, and the Frenchman with his wonderful colors in wool, that are chased hard by the Scot and his Ginghams, who in turn is pressed at all points by the Yankee, and now here comes the Irishman and shouts, away with your wool, your silk, your cotton, it's Erin's own flax that beats you all in cloth and color. But you'll take your choice amid all the din.

126 styles of Irish Lawns are here, some printed, others woven, 22 to 30 cents, and four grades plain, 22 to 40 cents; dazzling, perfect white, sheer.

If there had not been "A Princess of Thule" there would not have been a Sheila Curtain. When William Black named his heroine he put a trade-word into the mouth of the civilized world.

A stuff worthy the "Princess." Smoother, silkier, more lustrous than Chenille. Graceful in substance and delicate in tints. Whoever saw an ugly Sheila?

The Lost Atlantis.

For many centuries there has been a tradition of a long lost island called Atlantis.

The Greek geographers located it in the Atlantic Ocean, west of the northwest part of Africa and the Pillars of Hercules. The sea-kings of Atlantis are said to have invaded Europe and Africa, and to have been defeated by the Athenians.

All the legends agree that it was a vast island, of inexhaustible resources, and inhabited by a race of superior people. For ages this island has existed only on legendary lore. But now, when the light of modern research is turned full upon the investigation, behold the lost Atlantis at our very doors.

So the bigoted medical fraternity goes groping about in the dark, seeking for an Atlantis or Esculapius, when if they would investigate, they would behold the lost Atlantis at their very door. With their ancient text book, a case of physic, a paper in their waistcoat giving them license to practice, experiment and dose with their injurious drugs, cauterize and perform unnecessary acts, with no person or laws to hold them accountable, they continue their bigoted, unjustified practice, staving into vacancy, and imagining that they see in themselves an Esculapius.

Wrapped in ancient bigotry, they are crying out against all improvements that have been made in medical science. They denounce any new idea advanced by a layman or an opposition school as a fraud.

Why?

Because humanity will not be benefited? Not at all, but because their special ism did not make the discovery.

Yet they concede that their is no remedy known to their materia medica that will cure an advanced kidney malady and the diseases arising therefrom—although many of them know from crowning proof that Warner's Safe Cure will—but unscrapulously treat symptoms and call them a disease, when in reality they know they are but symptoms.

A few of the more honest physicians admit that Warner's Safe Cure is a valuable remedy, and a great blessing to mankind, but say, in so many words, when asked why they do not prescribe it, that they cannot, according to their code.

Nevertheless, the world is fast becoming satisfied that the cure for kidney and liver diseases, in whatever form or condition, has been discovered, and there is no doubt but what Warner's Safe Cure and its fame will live long after such bigotry as we have instanced is dead and buried.

The late eminent physician and writer, Dr. J. G. Holland, published in "Scribner's Monthly," and showed his opinion of such bigotry, and no doubt was satisfied that Atlantis might possibly be discovered in a proprietary medicine, when he wrote editorially, as follows:

"Nevertheless, it is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day were more successful than many of the physicians, and most of them, it should be remembered, were first discovered or used in actual medical practice. When, however, any shrewd person, knowing their virtue, and foreseeing their popularity, secures and advertises them, then, in the opinion of the bigoted, all virtue went out of them."

Why Many People Seek Divorce.

A judge who has tried several hundred divorce cases and who has given special study to the subject said: "I find that the chief and underlying motive of the bulk of divorces is resolved into the practical issue of bread and butter. The wife of the man whose income is $1 50 and $2 a day is hard-pressed, overworked, consequently peevish. She is bothered to make the small sum she can have stretch out over the wide space of daily food and daily clothes. She is often driven to desperation by the needs of her children. She must pinch and contrive to keep shoes on their naked, cold little feet in Wintertime. The food of the family is necessarily of the poorest quality. It is insufficient for the physical needs of the man and of the woman, too. He responds to the demands of his system for sustenance by stopping on his way to and from work for a glass or two of beer, perhaps he takes more, and his improperly nourished system makes the beverage more stimulating than it would be to a well-fed man. His brain is slightly inflamed by it; he goes home irritable and careless in his speech. The worried and tired wife frets at him, at the children; they cry, and are in his way. Discussion springs up, and quarrels ensue between the man and woman. The man is discouraged, desperate. He runs away and leaves the poor burdened creature who married him to shift for herself and their off spring. He is made a coward and a villian because of incapacity to earn money enough comfortably to meet the responsibilities he assumed."

Adventures of a Lost Pocketbook.

A young man found a lady's pocketbook in the street at Third Avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street yesterday. In it were a button hook, a pair of tweezers, a small lithograph, and four cents. He carried it along One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street until he saw a well-dressed young couple approaching, and then, as an experiment on human nature, dropped it on the sidewalk when the couple came up. The man made a dive for the pocketbook and he and his companion retired to a doorway to examine their find. Soon they came out, and, putting the pocketbook on the sidewalk again, passed on. The young man picked up the pocketbook. The four cents were gone. He dropped it again just before reaching another couple, and it was picked up as before, and the second couple also retired, and after a short time placed the book on the walk. When the young man picked it up that time the tweezers and button hook were gone, and only the poor little picture was left to accompany the pocketbook as it was finally thrown into the street.—New York Sun.

That tired feeling

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

The wise political prophet who predicted great prosperity for the workingman in the event of Harrison's election is significantly silent these days. He has nothing to say and the average workingman has nothing to do. That is the situation in brief.

The Retiring President

When the Democratic party was restored to power in the federal government four years ago the opposition press teemed with prophecies of evil. Indeed to read and believe the gloomy vaticinations of the anti-democratic press of that day was to set it down as a certainty that the country would go to the "dem ition bowwows" within six months after the inauguration of the democratic president. But the prophets of evil have been utterly confuted and discredited by the just, conservative and dignified administration of the Government by President Cleveland. The disgusting scandals which made anti-democratic administrations a by-word and reproach had no repetition even in the smallest degree under democratic rule. There has been no post-tradership, whiskey ring, Star route, Peruvian guano, or other corruptions to stain the record of President Cleveland's administration. It passes into history without a blot or blemish.

Nor does the claim of the Cleveland regime to the gratitude and applause of the people rest merely on the negative quality of a correct and irreproachable morality in the conduct of the government. The positive policies of President Cleveland have been so boldly defined that they have left an indelible impress upon the public mind. His heroic effort to reduce federal taxation and reform the revenue system of the government, though defeated by an anti-democratic senate, has had a wholesome effect in bringing to the attention of the people the enormities of a system of taxation deliberately devised to enrich the few at the expense of the multitude. The restoration of many millions of acres to the public domain which has been granted to corporations that failed to comply with the conditions of the gift, has made a most honorable record for the conduct of the department of the interior. The reconstruction of the navy, free from favoritism and jobs in the letting of contracts, with the result that there is now in the service of the government a fast sailing fleet of armored war ships which makes the United States once more a formidable naval power, speakes volumes in praise of the administration of the navy department. The extention and improvement of the mail service, in spite of the obstacles thrown in the way by thousands of officials retained in the service who never could subordinate their political hostility to the administration to their duty as employes of the government, fully vindicate the devotion of the democratic post master general to the public interest. The management of the treasury amid the difficulties and dangers of an accumulating surplus which seriously threatened the business of the country, has been such as to command the approval of the wisest financiers whatever their political affiliations. The relation of the country with foreign nations has been maintained with dignity and firmness and the war office has been administered without incident, with the exception of the flag episode which was meant to ensure the permanent pacification of the country.

Such is the record of the late democratic administration. Let opposing partisans critisise it as they may, let envy, hatred and malice pour their envenomed bitterness upon it, impartial history will accept it as an imperishable testimony of the courage, fidelity, ability and patriotism of an upright chief magistrate whose greatest concern was to promote the welfare and happiness of the people who had entrusted him with the highest office in their gift. And now, with a calm dignity, a nobility of demeanor that shames the bigotry and hostility of opposing partisanship, the democratic president lays down the robes of office and yields the chair of state to his successor. The good wishes and grateful remembrance of a majority of his fellow citizens will attend him in his retirement and in the fullness of time an undivided public opinion will accord him the full meed of praise for his unselfish devotion to the public good which is now partially denied him through the narrowness of political opposition.—Patriot.

Happy Meeting of Two Friends.

John M. Allen of Charlotte, N. Y., said to his friend, "Parsons, I am about dead with the Gravel, and cannot find help." Mr. Parsons induced Mr. Allen to give Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., a trial. Weeks went by and the friends met. Mr. Allen said, "Dr David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has saved my life. It is a cure for gravel—and the only cure." mar 1-2t

Something Wrong About The Sheriff

A stranger, supposed to be a man who is wanted for murder in Tucson, was discovered hiding under a bridge the other day and taken to jail to be held until identified. That night he dug his way out and next day the sheriff was around trying to get a $100 bill changed. He says he found the bill on the street, but that story looks fishy. There isn't a man in this town that wouldn't yell a lung out if he had lost that much money. The prisoner used a crowbar to dig out with, and he sheriff says he must have had it concealed in his pistol pocket. The official owes us $15, and if we can't get our hands on the money this week we shall, in our next issue, advise the public to run him out of town as a dishonest scoundrel.—Arizona Kicker

An Attack of Gravel.

The Terrible Suffering of a Woman at 60.—How She was Happily Cured.

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. My troubles began in my kidneys and from which I never expected to recover. First there were pains in my back, I was feverish, with no appetite and could not sleep, I was compelled to use a cane, and finally got so weak that I could not stand alone. The distress in my back was terrible. I was burning up with a fever or constantly shivering as if cold. My physicians said which was alarming information. To add to my affliction after I had been ill about two years, I had a bad attack of Gravel. When this made its appearance my physician gave up my case, and I resigned myself to die. I had four doctors attend me, the best in the country, yet I constantly grew worse. Six years ago last June, how well I remember the time! I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using one bottle I threw away my cane and went to New York on a visit, and three bottles cured me. I have never had a return of Gravel, nor of the pains or weakness in the back, and though I am over sixty years of age I am as I was in my prime. I do all my own work, and rarely know what it is to be tired. I keep this medicine in the house and give it to my grandchildren, and recommend it whenever I can. What physicians and all of the various remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did—it stayed the disease, and made me a strong, vigorous woman.

I HAD BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

Now Vigorous and Strong

Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets The Original LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. ALWAYS ASK FOR DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS, OR LITTLE SUGAR-COATED PILLS.

Being entirely vegetable, they operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a laxative, alterative, or purgative, these little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE,

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their curative influence. Sold by druggists, 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are sore, weak, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians. By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache. Sold by druggists everywhere; 50 cents.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. Hagensen, the famous mesmerist, Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

Thomas J. Rushing, Esq., 1901 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

Eli Robbins, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

Revealing A Hindoo Trick.

Kellar the prestidigitateur, speaking of the famous Hindoo magicians to a reporter of the Buffalo Express, said: A trick which puzzled me for a long time was making a pineapple grow under a handkerchief. The juggler lays a handkerchief flat on the ground and then begins to sing and beat on the tom-tom, when in the centre of the handkerchief something begins to stir and rise in pyramidal form, dilating until just about the size of a pineapple, when the conjurer inserts his hand under the handkerchief and pulls out a ripe pineapple.

"I watched his trick several times before I could get a clue to it. The motion of life puzzled me. But one day I took a position on the side—the conjurers sit on one side of a circle, making the spectators form the rest of the circumference—where I could see the juggler's motions more clearly, and I noticed that one of the confederates put a bag, like a sailor's bag, near the conjurer's hands. He sat there tailor fashion, and as he spread out his handkerchief on the ground I saw his hand make a trip swift as lightning to the bag and back under the handkerchief, and I thought I saw something like the tail of a snake accompany it. That gave me an idea, and afterwards, by pretending to understand the trick, and by paying one of the Hindoos four rupees, I got him to confess how the trick was done.

"The conjurer does take a snake from the bag placed conveniently at his elbow. When the cobra is put under the handkerchief he naturally coils himself up. Then the conjurers begin their music and the cobra raises his head, and this gives the lifting motion to the handkerchief. One of the first things a cobra does when excited is to swell out his neck, and this makes the pyramidal shape. When the juggler puts his hand under the handkerchief he takes with it a hollowed pineapple and removes the cobra inside of it concealed by his hand. That is one of the cleverest tricks I saw in India.

"Husband, I Want You to Try It."

I had suffered for years with a complaint the physcians called Gravel, and they had given up the attempt to help me. My wife heard of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., and spoke as above. To please her I got a bottle. Used that and two or three more, and presently the trouble vanished never to return.—Washington Monroe, Catskill, N. Y. mar. 1 4t

Girls Who Should Be Goats.

Biddeford and Saco girls have some queer tastes. One lady makes an excursion to the brick yard each Summer and lays in a supply of nice blue clay to eat through the winter. Another's favorite dainty is a soft brick, and long experience has taught her how to select the choicest specimens at a glance. Each of these ladies has lived to a good old age to enjoy her favorite dishes. One young lady may often be seen picking from the sidewalk soft, shelly rocks, and after a nibble to see if they are just right, transferring the rock to her pocket for future consumption. Soft clay pipes, which one girl buys by the dozen, ground up slate pencils, chalk, sea sand, white rags, brown wrapping-paper and starch are among the favorite luxuries of others. Perhaps the queerest taste of all is that for ashes. One young lady is said to delight in coal ashes and to be often seen raking over old coal ashes for a lump only partially burned, upon which there is a nice, clean, white ash. Another has but recently broken a habit which she has followed since childhood of eating bread sprinkled with wood ashes instead of butter.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Unable to Tell.

Yes, that was so. For years I suffered severely with scrofula; sores broke out all over my body, and I am unable to tell one half that I suffered. I was not able to obtain relief until I used Sulphur Bitters, which completely cured me.—C. B. Dale, 17 Allston street, Boston. M-r-15-2t.

CATARRH,

Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrhal discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, 304 West King St., Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrhal troubles should read the above carefully.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPP'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, oct. 26-d-6t. London, England.
